Projects

Project Title: Corporate Travel Management Processes for Baker Hughes

Project Duration: 2 Months

Technologies Used: Sabre, GetRes, Travcom, AQUA

Overview:

The objective of this project was to streamline the corporate travel management processes for Baker Hughes, a leading multinational energy technology company. The project was aimed at improving the efficiency and accuracy of the travel management system used by the company's employees.

Responsibilities:

As a part of the project team, the following responsibilities were undertaken:

- Performed comprehensive testing of all the processes involved in corporate travel management including profile data, corporate fares, and accounting fields.
- Responsible for setting up client policies, air, car, hotel contracts, and site testing.
- Created test bookings and processed them through AQUA to check for errors and rectify them, if any.
- Verified the accounting field in Travcom to ensure that the invoices were printed correctly.
- Got corporate fares loaded on the Online Booking Tool (OBT) and tested them for accuracy.
- Conducted testing on GetRes with test bookings to check for errors in OBT bookings.

Results:

The project was completed successfully within the specified timeframe. The streamlined corporate travel management system enabled Baker Hughes to manage its travel more efficiently, reduce errors, and save time and money. The testing and verification processes ensured that the system was accurate and reliable, and the implementation of new policies and contracts helped the company to optimize its travel-related expenses.

Conclusion:

The project played a crucial role in streamlining the travel management processes for Baker Hughes, thereby enhancing the overall efficiency of the company's operations. The use of technologies like Sabre, GetRes, Travcom, and AQUA helped to automate several processes, reduce manual errors, and increase productivity. The project team's efforts in testing and verification ensured that the system was accurate and reliable, and the successful completion of the project within the specified timeline helped to build a positive relationship between the client and the service provider.
